

How to Search the PDF Version

If you've downloaded the PDF version of the Community Connections 2008 book, there are tools within the Adobe Reader program that can facilitate your search for specific programs. The following assumes you have the latest version of Adobe Reader installed on your computer - the Reader program is free, and is available from www.adobe.com.

Reader has a built-in search function that will search for a string of text, much like using Google. It's usually in the toolbar at the top of the Reader screen - in the latest version, it's a box with the word Find written in grey inside - but you can also find it by going to the Edit drop-down menu and selecting Find. Reader will search for whatever string you type in, and will highlight wherever that word appears in the document from the point that you started the search.

For example, if you start at the beginning of the document and type "Extend-A-Family" (without the quotes) into the Find box, Reader will find the first instance of that phrase near the bottom of the inside cover. Next to the Find box are two arrows pointing left and right; click the right button and it will continue searching forwards through the document. Keep in mind that there are some words, like "disabilities" or "Cambridge" or "youth", which appear with great frequency throughout the PDF, so be careful when using those.
